Players will have the opportunity to play through the best moments of a full-intensity match using all-new techniques, including physics-based behaviours and more precise ball control. The new cover system on the Xbox One version of FIFA 22 allows players to switch players seamlessly and seamlessly make ball changes. Players will now be able to change formations throughout the duration of a match, with the new options including direct moves, maneuvers and long balls. The news continues that the Kinect add-on is out of the box, adding a depth movement system along with adding depth for player body and making player-to-player more authentic. The Guide button on the Xbox One version of FIFA 22 is used to quickly access goals, shots and other game information. The button also gives gamers “an increased level of situational awareness” with contextual AI and information provided on the on-screen display. FIFA 22 lets you try all of your favorite positions. New goalkeepers and midfielders can help you take your game to the next level with an expanded roster of goalkeeper equipment, new goalkeeper controls, new goalkeeper speed, new defensive and offensive roles, and new defensive tactics. All-new draft classes, game modes, and Ultimate Team picks allow you to collect players in your preferred style. FIFA 22 is available to play in every supported region. New season, new kits, and new player renderings mean that when you take your game on the road, you're always in style. FIFA 22 arrives on Xbox One from March 17. Source: Xbox Live

Features Key:

- Movement AI – The new in-game intelligence has been enhanced by the use of hyper-motor data to make the player's movements more realistic and responsive in any situation.
- Player Behaviour – Players react and adapt to their opponent, the ball, and teammates.
- Physically Based Shaders – FIFA 22 was one of the first games to use physically-based lighting techniques on consoles, and the new in-game shadows use this lighting technology for a more organic appearance.
- Real Player Injury – Players' injury AI has been improved so they exhibit more realistic injury patterns in game, similar to those experienced by elite athletes in real life.
